The Early Years

Ruth Bader Ginsburg was born in Brooklyn, New York, in 1933. Her parents were Jewish immigrants from Poland and Ukraine. Ginsburg's mother, Celia Amster Bader, was a seamstress, and her father, Nathan Bader, was a factory worker.

From a young age, Ginsburg displayed a remarkable intellect and determination. She skipped two grades in elementary school and graduated high school at the age of 16.

Education and Career

Ginsburg attended Cornell University, where she earned a degree in government in 1954. She then went on to Columbia Law School, where she graduated first in her class in 1959.

After graduating from law school, Ginsburg clerked for Supreme Court Justice Felix Frankfurter. She then taught law at Rutgers University and Columbia Law School before being appointed to the Supreme Court in 1993.

A Champion for Gender Equality

Throughout her career, Ginsburg was a tireless advocate for gender equality. She argued six landmark cases before the Supreme Court, all of which resulted in victories for women's rights.

In 1971, Ginsburg co-founded the Women's Rights Project of the American Civil Liberties Union (ACLU). The project has been instrumental in achieving major legal victories for women, including the right to equal pay, the right to reproductive choice, and the right to be free from discrimination.
